Historic Beaufort
Foundation
SOUTH CAROLINA

Preserving Historic Resources
SINCE 1965

“Without Historic Beaufort Foundation,
Beaufort would not be the cherished gem of today.”

Beaufort is nationally recognized as a preservation success story, thanks to the hard work of dedicated preservationists, government leaders, and supportive friends, today. Since the purchase of the John Mark Verdier House in 1947, concerned citizens have been working diligently to preserve the historic resources of Beaufort and the South Carolina Lowcountry. With its incorporation in 1965, Historic Beaufort Foundation (HBF) has been at the forefront of the preservation movement, advocating for the preservation of the integrity local landmarks, neighborhoods, and the National Historic Landmark District.

HBF’s conservation easement program protects the exteriors of some of Beaufort’s most important buildings. The Verdier House and our educational programs instill in our community an appreciation for the history of our region and the importance of our preservation mission. Our preservation fund has provided resources for the restoration of a variety of projects from grand antebellum homes to small cottages crafted by 19th Century African-American freedmen. Historic Beaufort Foundation has been the primary advocate for historic preservation in the region.

While proud of its past successes, Historic Beaufort Foundation has not won all its battles. Indeed, our biggest challenge lies ahead — protecting the fragile historic architecture and maintaining the quality of life that it offers its residents. With your support, Historic Beaufort Foundation will continue to make a difference, preserving the architectural and historical integrity of our community for future generations.
